Alex Trebek diagnosed with pancreatic cancer

2 “Jeopardy!” host Alex Trebek has been diagnosed with Stage IV pancreatic cancer, he said in a video message on Wednesday, vowing to beat the disease despite its low survival rate. The Canadian-born Trebek has hosted the syndicated game show since 1984, making him one of the most recognizable figures on television in North America. Trebek, 78, said in a video message posted to YouTube that he was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer earlier this week. “Now normally, the prognosis for this is not very encouraging, but I’m going to fight this, and I’m going to keep working,” Trebek said. “And with the love and support of my family and friends and with the help of your prayers also, I plan to beat the low survival rate statistics for this disease.” Stage IV typically means the cancer has spread to other parts of the body.

‘Beagle Brigade’ used to sniff out deadly hog virus

3 The U.S. government will employ more dogs to sniff out illegal pork products at airports and seaports in an effort to keep out a contagious hog disease that has spread across Asia and Europe, the U.S. Department of Agriculture said Wednesday. The disease, African swine fever, can kill hogs in just two days, but is not harmful to people. China has reported more than 100 cases of the disease in 27 provinces and regions since August. Efforts to contain the fever have disrupted Chinese pork supplies. U.S. officials decided to ramp up their fight to avoid the virus after Vietnam confirmed its first cases last month, said the USDA’s Greg Ibach. They’ll add 60 beagle teams at key commercial ports, seaports and airports, for a total of 179 teams, to expand arrival screenings and check cargo for illegal pork products that can carry the virus, according to the USDA.

R. Kelly denies sexual abuse charges, arrested hours later

Pounding his chest for emphasis, Kelly shouted, "I didn't do this stuff!"

R&B singer R. Kelly was taken into custody on Wednesday after a court hearing in Chicago in which he was ordered to pay $161,663 in child support he owes, according to a Cook County Sheriff's spokesman.

Kelly was detained hours after CBS News aired an interview with the singer in which he lashed out against charges that he had sexually assaulted teenage girls.

Kelly, 52, pleaded not guilty in February to charges that he sexually assaulted three teenage girls and a woman in alleged incidents dating back to 1998, weeks after a Lifetime documentary leveled new accusations against him.

In his first interview since the indictment, "CBS This Morning" co-host Gayle King asked Kelly about allegations that he had sex with women under 18 and that he was physically and verbally abusive.

"Not true," the "I Believe I Can Fly" singer responded in a clip of the interview played on the CBS Evening News. King, who spoke to Kelly in Chicago, his hometown, then asked if he had held anyone against his will. "I don't need to. Why would I?" he said.

The singer grew angry and emotional as the interview went on, turning to make his argument directly to the camera. "That's stupid. Use your common sense," he said.

"Forget the blogs, forget how you feel about me," Kelly added. "Hate me if you want to, love me if you want. But just use your common sense. How stupid would it be for me, with my crazy past."

Pounding his chest for emphasis, Kelly shouted, "I didn't do this stuff!" His voice cracked and he broke into tears, saying: "This is not me! I'm fighting for my f—ng life!" The excerpt broadcast by CBS bleeped out the expletive while the transcript used an asterisk.

Kelly, whose real name is Robert Sylvester Kelly, could face up to seven years in prison for each of the 10 counts if convicted.

CBS said it will air additional footage from the interview on "CBS This Morning" on Wednesday and Thursday. REUTERS

Chef Batali cuts ties with restaurants

GETTY IMAGES

Celebrity chef and former television star Mario Batali sold his stakes in his U.S. restaurants on Wednesday, after accusations of sexual harassment caused him to be fired from a television cooking show and prompted a police investigation.

Batali has sold his shares in the 16-restaurant operation, including Babbo and Del Posto in New York, to former partners Tanya Bastianich Manuali and her brother, Joe Bastianich, he said.

"I have reached an agreement with Joe and no longer have any stake in the restaurants we built together. I wish him the best of luck in the future," Batali said in a statement from his representative, Risa Heller.

Batali has previously admitted and apologized for sexually harassing women but denied charges that he sexually assaulted a woman in 2005.

Since the start of the #MeToo movement, hundreds of women have publicly accused powerful men of sexual misconduct that was often overlooked by colleagues.

Batali's charisma and culinary flair turned him into a restaurant executive, television star, author and one of the world's most recognizable chefs. He premiered on Food Network in 1997 on the show "Molto Mario" and in 2011 helped launch "The Chew" on ABC.

Batali is in the process of selling a minority stake of Eataly USA, a luxury marketplace with six locations in the United States, Eataly spokesman Chris Giglio said in a statement. Heller did not respond to requests for comment on Batali's ownership of Eataly.

The New York Police Department launched an investigation after CBS "60 Minutes" reported in May 2018 that Batali drugged and sexually assaulted an employee in 2005. Batali at the time denied the report.

"I have reached an agreement with Joe and no longer have any stake in the restaurants we built together. I wish him the best of luck in the future."

Mario Batali

Police in January closed their investigation because detectives could not find enough evidence and the incident was past the state's statute of limitations, according to reports by local media.

Police did not immediately respond to requests for comment.

In December 2017, ABC Television Network fired Batali from its daytime cooking show "The Chew" after four unnamed women accused him of sexual misconduct that they said spanned at least two decades. The Food Network had also canceled plans to relaunch "Molto Mario."

In a previous statement, Batali apologized and admitted to those allegations, stating that the claims "match up with ways I have acted."

US Sen. and Air Force vet McSally says she was raped by a superior officer

The Arizona Republican is the second senator in two months to come forward.

U.S. Sen. Martha McSally. REUTERS

U.S. Sen. Martha McSally, the first female combat pilot in the U.S. Air Force, said on Wednesday she had been raped by a superior officer but did not report it because she blamed herself and did not trust the system.

"The perpetrators abuse their position of power in profound ways, and in one case I was preyed upon and then raped by a superior officer," McSally said during a Senate hearing on sexual assault in the military.

"But unlike so many brave survivors, I didn't report being sexually assaulted," she added. "Like so many women and men, I didn't trust the system. I blamed myself. I was ashamed and confused. I thought I was strong but felt powerless."

Sexual assault and harassment in the military is largely underreported and came under renewed scrutiny two years ago after a scandal involving Marines sharing nude photos of women online came to light.

"I stayed silent for many years, but later in my career, as the military grappled with scandals and their wholly inadequate responses, I felt the need to let some people know I, too, was a survivor," McSally said at the Senate Armed Services subcommittee hearing.

"I was horrified at how my attempts to share generally my experiences were handled," she said, adding that she came close to leaving the Air Force after 18 years.

"Like many victims, I felt the system was raping me all over again."

"I stayed silent for many years, but later in my career, as the military grappled with scandals and their wholly inadequate responses, I felt the need to let some people know I, too, was a survivor."

U.S. Sen. Martha McSally

The Air Force did not immediately comment.

McSally's disclosure came fewer than two months after Sen. Joni Ernst, an Army veteran, said publicly that she had been raped in college by someone she knew and that her ex-husband had physically abused her. An attorney for her former husband declined to comment at the time.

Ernst, a Republican, has in the past worked with Democratic Sen. Kirsten Gillibrand to combat sexual assault in the military.

McSally, 52, an Arizona Republican who served two terms in the U.S. House of Representatives, was appointed in December by the state's governor to take over the Senate seat once held by the late John McCain. A special election will be held in 2020 to fill the remaining two years of McCain's six-year term.

In November's congressional elections, McSally lost to Democrat Kyrsten Sinema in the contest for Arizona's other U.S. Senate seat, formerly held by Republican Jeff Flake. REUTERS

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

"Don't Get ANY Surgery Until You SeeThis…"

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It's Best "Treatment Formula" For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going is be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it's complex. In other words, it's not a simple, easy fix.

But I'm sure you already know that. Or you wouldn't be reading this.

That's the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It's amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can't give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD "Treatment Formula" A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW....

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these "gel injections" without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patent. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here's What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our "Treatment Formula."

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what's going on and what is your best course of action… step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what's going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I'm out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Trump: Would be 'very disappointed' in Kim

If reports about a North Korea launch site are true.

REUTERS

President Donald Trump said on Wednesday he would be very disappointed in North Korean leader Kim Jong-un if reports about rebuilding at a rocket launch site in North Korea were true.

Two U.S. think tanks and South Korea's Yonhap News Agency reported on Tuesday that work was underway to restore part of North Korea's Sohae Satellite Launching Station even as Trump met with North Korean leader Kim Jong-un at a second summit in Hanoi last week.

"I would be very disappointed if that were happening," Trump told reporters in the Oval Office, when asked if North Korea was breaking a promise.

"Well we're going to see. It's too early to see. ... It's a very early report. We're the ones that put it out. But I would be very, very disappointed in Chairman Kim, and I don't think I will be, but we'll see what happens. We'll take a look. It'll ultimately get solved."

North Korea began work to dismantle a missile engine test stand at Sohae last year after pledging to do so in a first summit with Trump in June.

A second summit between Trump and Kim broke down last week in Hanoi over differences on how far North Korea was willing to limit its nuclear program and the degree of U.S. willingness to ease sanctions.

"We have a very nasty problem there. We have to solve a problem," Trump said, while adding in apparent reference to Kim: "The relationship is good."

Satellite images seen by 38 North, a Washington-based North Korea project, showed that structures on the Sohae launchpad had been rebuilt sometime between Feb. 16 and March 2, Jenny Town, managing editor at the project and an analyst at the Stimson Center think tank, told Reuters.

The Center for Strategic and International Studies think tank released a separate report, also citing satellite imagery, that concluded North Korea was "pursuing a rapid rebuilding" at the site.

News of the rebuilding work at Sohae was first reported by Yonhap News Agency, which quoted South Korea lawmakers on details of a briefing by the country's National Intelligence Service in Seoul on Tuesday.

A U.S. government source said the work at Sohae likely began before the summit, which was preceded by a series of lower-level preparatory talks in February.

Trump's national security adviser, John Bolton, warned on Tuesday that new sanctions could be introduced if North Korea did not scrap its nuclear weapons program. The breakdown of the Feb. 27-28 summit and Bolton's sanctions threat have raised questions about the future of a dialogue process the Trump administration has pursued in an effort to persuade North Korea to abandon a nuclear weapons program that threatens the U.S.

Some analysts have interpreted the work at Sohae as an attempt by North Korea to put pressure on Washington to agree to a deal rather than as a definite move to resume tests there.

The U.S. government source, who did not want to be otherwise identified, said North Korea's plan in rebuilding at the site could have been to conspicuously stop again as a demonstration of good faith if a summit agreement was struck, while the work would represent a sign of defiance or resolve if the meeting failed.

U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said on Monday he was hopeful he would send a delegation to North Korea in the coming weeks but that he had "no commitment yet." REUTERS

Overcoming the costs of hearing loss

Connect Hearing, a national hearing care provider, is leading the charge to make quality hearing solutions more affordable for Americans suffering from hearing loss.

48 million Americans are significantly affected by hearing loss, and yet, just 14 percent of those who could benefit from hearing aids use them.[1] Studies have shown that the cost of hearing aids is a huge reason that many have not adopted them.

Unfortunately, this leaves tens of millions of Americans feeling isolated, frustrated, and earning lower incomes[2] due to decreased effectiveness in the workplace. It also increases risks of depression, decline in memory and concentration, and early-onset dementia.[3] More than 100 years ago, Helen Keller, who was both deaf and blind, explained the isolation caused by hearing loss: "Blindness separates people from things. Deafness separates people from people."

In good news, Connect Hearing, a leading national network of hearing care centers, has worked with a world leading hearing aid manufacturer to ensure that advanced hearing solutions are available to all, regardless of their financial means. This has led to the limited release of the NovaSense Elite™ hearing aid at the special price of $499. This includes custom programming to suit each wearer's unique hearing needs. Connect Hearing is also offering a 45-day satisfaction guarantee and do not charge for hearing evaluations and fitting services.

This program has been met with great enthusiasm by Connect Hearing's dedicated team, including Doctor of Audiology, Pauline Dinnauer, who says, "It is great to work for an organization that is working for all Americans with hearing loss."

Majority of Americans think Trump committed crimes before election

Michael Cohen's testimony against President Trump might have hit him where he lives — in the polls.

Sixty-four percent of American voters believed that Trump committed crimes before he became president, according to a Quinnipiac poll released Wednesday. Only 24 percent said he didn't, and 13 percent weren't sure.

The survey was conducted after Cohen testified before Congress that Trump directed him to lie about hush money paid to Trump's mistresses before the 2016 election.

As to whether Trump has committed crimes while in office, 45 percent of Americans said yes; 43 percent said he hadn't.

During Cohen's Feb. 27 testimony, he called Trump a "racist" and a "con man," and detailed the hush-money payments. The president's former fixer claimed that Trump had artificially inflated his assets to get bank loans, then deflated them to save on taxes. Trump has denied the allegations.

GETTY IMAGES

Fifty percent of respondents said they believed Cohen; 33 percent said they believed Trump. Forty-four percent said that Cohen told the truth; 36 percent said he didn't.

"When two-thirds of voters think you have committed a crime in your past life, and almost half of voters say it's a toss-up over whether you committed a crime while in the Oval Office, confidence in your overall integrity is very shaky," said Tim Malloy, assistant director of the Quinnipiac University Poll. "Add to that, Michael Cohen, a known liar headed to the big house, has more credibility than the leader of the free world."

Overall, more Americans approved of how the Democrats handled the House Oversight hearing in which Cohen testified. Forty-one percent approved of the Democrats' performance, while 51 percent disapproved of the GOP.

But Americans aren't ready to move toward impeachment: Fifty-nine percent of voters said that Congress should not begin impeachment hearings against Trump, while 35 percent said it should. But voters said that Congress should continue to investigate Trump by nearly the same margin, 58 to 35 percent.

The poll put Trump's approval rating at 38 percent, the same as in January. MICHAEL MARTIN

Zuckerberg says Facebook's future is 'privacy-focused'

He admitted the public will probably remain skeptical about this privacy push.

Mark Zuckerberg. REUTERS

Facebook Inc. Chief Executive Mark Zuckerberg on Wednesday said the company would encrypt conversations on more of its messaging services and make them compatible, the latest sign that the world's biggest social network sees its future in intimate online chats.

Zuckerberg said in a post on his Facebook profile that within a few years direct messaging would dwarf discussion on the traditional, open platform of Facebook's news feed, where public posts can go viral across the world.

"Working toward implementing end-to-end encryption for all private communications is the right thing to do," Zuckerberg said. He cautioned that details of the plan could change, however, as the company consults experts throughout 2019.

The strategy could frustrate law enforcement surveillance efforts as well as lawmakers who have called on Facebook to better moderate user content. It also would limit the company's ability to generate revenue through targeted ads.

But Zuckerberg said he could live with those tradeoffs because users want better control of their data while still having easy access to their contacts.

> "The future of communication will increasingly shift to private."
> Mark Zuckerberg

As part of Zuckerberg's strategy, a Facebook user would be able to communicate with WhatsApp users while only having a Messenger account and vice versa. Users would also have more options for how long chats are saved, he added.

"The future of communication will increasingly shift to private, encrypted services where people can be confident what they say to each other stays secure and their messages and content won't stick around forever," he said. "This is the future I hope we will help bring about."

Facebook shares rose 0.7 percent on Wednesday. Shares in Snap Inc., which owns messaging app Snapchat, ended down more than 2 percent.

Zuckerberg acknowledged that the public may be skeptical about Facebook's privacy push given the company does not have a "strong reputation for building privacy protective services."

Lawmakers, users and investors have expressed concerns over the last two years that Facebook is not doing enough to safeguard user data after a series of breaches and privacy bugs.

But Zuckerberg wrote that "we've repeatedly shown that we can evolve to build the services that people really want." REUTERS

THE GRUMBLE DOG WINTER FASHION SHOW!!

Over the past few weeks, we have been flooded with emails with photos from our readers of their dogs wearing their best winter outfits. While we get a kick out of them over here at Metro HQ, we figured that it would only be fair to share these riches with the rest of the world. Feast your eyes on some of the best winter dog outfits from our mailbag.

Aries Do what makes you happy. Take a moment to yourself or spend time with someone who understands you. Refuse to acknowledge negativity.

Taurus Look at the possibilities and start the ball rolling. Pledge to reach your goals without complaint. Deal with problems secretively and have faith in your ability to take care of business.

Gemini Don't put pressure on others. If something needs to be done, do it yourself. Making assumptions or overreacting will not get you where you want to go.

Cancer Don't fear failure. Pick yourself up and make the most of whatever comes your way. If you recognize an opportunity and seize the moment, good things will happen.

Leo Don't let the changes going on around you slow you down. If you assess the situation, you'll find the best way to fit in and make a difference.

Virgo Use your imagination to come up with solutions that will help you get ahead. Gaining experience will be key to your success. A partnership will need an adjustment.

Libra Put greater emphasis on how you handle money. You'll face criticism if you make decisions without considering the consequences. Review details carefully before you make a change.

Scorpio Put some muscle behind your ideas and turn your dream into a reality. Much can be accomplished if you are willing to make a change. A unique lifestyle alteration is encouraged.

Sagittarius You'll be surprised by what someone says or does. Do not share personal information. Concentrate on self-improvement and steer clear of untrustworthy individuals.

Capricorn A change will do you good. Learn something new, research something you want to pursue and make your space conducive to greater productivity. Be the best that you can be.

Aquarius Don't take unnecessary risks. Improve your attitude by distancing yourself from a critic looking for a fight. Be proud of who you are and what you bring to the table.

Pisces Stick to the facts and follow the path that is best for you. Stay focused on what's important and refuse to let anyone pressure you to engage in excessive behavior. EUGENIA LAST

"Buddy vs. Duff" premieres March 10 MATT HARBICHT/THE VERBATIM AGENCY

Who will take the cake?

Buddy vs. Duff premieres March 10 on Food Network.

MOLLY GIVEN
Molly.Given@metro.us

"Cake Boss" Buddy Valastro and the "Ace of Cakes" Duff Goldman are finally going head to head in a competition so sweet, it needed six weeks to be completed. In "Buddy vs. Duff," these two cake connoisseurs compete in a series of wacky, crazy and just plain impressive challenges where in the end, one of them is crowned the king of cakes.

The show premieres March 10 but many fans and cake lovers have been calling for a competition between the two stars for years, including the Cake Boss himself. "I think secretly I've always wanted to go head to head with Duff, and secretly he wanted to go head to head against me," Buddy says. "It's something that we both were never scared of and something we always wanted to do, time to give the fans what they want."

Buddy is not shy in front of the camera, he's been serving up extraordinarily gigantic cakes on TLC with the smash hit show "Cake Boss" for over a decade. Being on the popular show helped "train" the Hoboken native for the impending competition. "I gotta be honest with you the biggest thing that helped me was "Cake Boss." It's kind of like training for the Olympics right? When you think about it, what does a swimmer do? He swims every day. Doing 10 years of 'Cake Boss' every week trained me and Ralph to go to the Olympics of making cakes."

Although Buddy has gotten plenty of Olympic-style training in, not every part of the competition was easy. "The hardest was definitely the finale. We had four days to make the finale cake. I worked four days straight, 20 hours a day — I slept in my office."

In fact, some rounds of the competition proved to be extremely difficult, especially when facing former pastry chef Duff. "I think we had some episodes where he had advantages and some where I had advantages. One episode we had to do a plate of desserts, Duff worked as a pastry chef in restaurants and hotels. I never made a plate of desserts in my life really, I've been a baker."

Buddy and Duff have to accomplish incredible feats during the competition such as constructing elaborate car-inspired cakes, making carnival treats for hungry patrons, creating illusion cakes for a special show at Hollywood's Magic Castle and more.

But there were some rounds where baking a cake was as easy as riding a bike. "I know what I know, the difference is what I know I don't think about. I've done it so many years. When I pick up a rolling pin it's connected to my arm, it's a part of me. It's effortless. I don't think about it, I just do it," says Buddy.

In the end, Buddy had nothing but respect for the Charm City Cakes owner. "I knew who Duff was, but I didn't know him personally. After the competition, I have a lot more respect and admiration for him as a baker, as a person and as a pastry chef — and I think it's vice versa."

Buddy also thinks this competition is unlike many others that are out there now. The head-to-head part where he gets to verse another popular cake celebrity was just the icing on top of an already delicious show idea.

At the end of the day, the Carlos Bakeshop owner is just happy he got to show off his passion and art again. "That's why I became a baker. It's an art. You put your heart and soul into it and give it everything you've got and you step back and look at what you created. It gives you that feeling of self-worth, the feeling of this is why I do what I do. I got that through all six episodes, but the finale was the biggest, it was over the top"

Who will be crowned the champion? Tune in to Food Network on March 10.

Meet Australia's largest outdoor art gallery

Amazing art forms a long trail

Silos are not only used to store huge quantities of grain in Australia. Artists also convert them into stunning masterpieces that seek to make the landscape look beautiful. Silo art has become a tradition in the country, thus every year new artworks appear on the so-called Silo Art Trail, the largest outdoor gallery in the country. MWN

Facts about the Silo Art Trail:

- The Silo Art Trail is Australia's largest outdoor art gallery.
- The trail started in 2016, linking Brim with neighboring towns Lascelles, Patchewollock, Rosebery, Rupanyup and Sheep Hills in the Wimmera Mallee area of rural Victoria.
- The trail recognizes and celebrates the region's people through a series of large-scale mural portraits.

Emeril Lagasse will set sail with Carnival Cruise Line in 2020

The beloved New Orleans chef will "kick it up a notch" on the high seas with his brand-new restaurant Emeril's Bistro.

PAT KING
patrick.king@metro.us

Yesterday afternoon, Carnival Cruise Line announced its brand-new cruise ship, the Mardi Gras, that will set sail in 2020. Paying homage to its very first boat, the TSS Mardi Gras, that set out on the high seas in 1972, the cruise will be a culmination of everything that guests have come to know and love from Carnival — and just a little bit more.

Over a private lunch in a tucked-away corner of New York City's Bell Book & Candle, the people at Carnival unveiled that Mardi Gras will be welcoming aboard none other than Emeril Lagasse to helm a brand-new a la carte restaurant onboard the ship for passengers looking for authentic New Orleans cooking. Because when you think of food from the Big Easy, who else comes to mind other than Mr. "BAM!" himself?

The restaurant, Emeril's Bistro, will sit directly in the middle of the ship's "French Quarter" zone and serve breakfast, lunch and dinner.

Along with an open seafood bar, main menu items will include oyster and cochon de lait po-boys, muffaletta sandwiches, Emeril's signature barbecue shrimp, fresh seafood ceviche, roasted duck & Andouille sausage gumbo, jambalaya and complements such as Creole potato salad with diced scallions and red beans and "jazz-man" rice. For breakfast, passengers will be able to indulge in the early hours with a shrimp and grits and a shrimp Creole omelet. To top off your meal, Big Easy classic Bananas Foster and lemon icebox pie will be waiting for you if you haven't already stuffed yourself with barbecue shrimp.

"It's been an incredible experience already working with the folks at Carnival," Lagasse says. "Not only the leaders but the culinary team and the chefs have been fabulous."

As far as challenges that may arise serving fresh seafood in the middle of a cruise, Lagasse believes where there is a will, there is a way.

"When I opened in Las Vegas 25 years ago, they thought I was absolutely insane to open a fish restaurant in the middle of the desert," laughs Lagasse. "Maybe it's not been done. Why not? Let's explore that. … I don't think these days there are any limitations. If you want Berkshire pork, there's no reason why we can't have Berkshire pork on the ship. That's what we're talking about with the seafood and oyster bar. We're not going to buy a bunch of frozen stuff. These guys, the culinary team at Carnival, think outside the box. If you want to have a hamachi crudo, we'll figure that out!"

This kind of spirit and drive is what initially made America fall in love with Emeril in the first place, and is what puts great faith into the people at Carnival to deliver some of his classic and world-renowned dishes.

Carnival Cruise Line and Emeril Lagasse Announcement Luncheon.

"People like to try different things," says Carnival Cruise Line President Christine Duffy. "We wanted this to be more about introducing people to the whole vibe that is New Orleans Cajun cooking that he does so well."

The Mardi Gras cruise will depart from Port Canaveral, Florida, and will have a variety of different destinations based upon the package you choose. The ship will also be the first cruise with a full roller coaster on board as well as many other forms of entertainment that will be announced in the upcoming months.

Climbing Mt. Everest just got a whole lot grosser (and it's a good thing)

Fodor's Travel

To summit Mt. Everest is a notoriously difficult, expensive and dangerous endeavor that only a limited number of people are able to attempt in any given year. But even the world's tallest mountain isn't free from the all-too-common issue of littering. In fact, the litter situation on Everest is compounded by the fact that the harsh conditions make recovering trash its own Herculean task.

The litter that mars the pristine and dramatic beauty of Mt. Everest has been a source of concern for years now. In 2017, climbers on the Nepal side removed 25 tons of trash and 15 tons of human feces. "The peak has become a fecal time bomb," wrote Outside magazine senior editor Grayson Schaffer in a Washington Post op-ed from 2014. But now Chinese officials are taking new steps aimed at keeping that particular bomb from detonating.

One of those changes is that the base camp on the Tibetan side, which saw 40,000 visitors in 2015, will be closed indefinitely to tourists. (Climbers who have obtained a permit to summit the mountain are still allowed.) The closure will give a team of 200 people time and space to clear trash at base camp as well as higher elevations. Tourists willing to make the trek can still visit the base camp on the Nepalese side.

The second change is that climbers will now be required to carry out all of their waste. And not just bottles and cans, but waste of the human variety.

The announcements were recently made by Ci Luo, director of the Chinese Mountaineering Association. But these are just the latest developments in efforts to contend with the issue of what to do with all the trash that's been accumulating on Everest.

In 2014, Nepal started requiring climbers to pay a $4,000 garbage-disposal deposit that's refunded when climbers return with at least 18 pounds of trash. According to Kim Barret, a professor of medicine at University of California San Diego, the average adult produces an average of 14 to 17 ounces of feces a day. So if it takes around two months to climb Everest that's roughly 50 pounds of waste. A 2012 survey of water sources near Gorak Shep, the lakebed where the waste from Everest's base camp is deposited, found that one of them failed to meet drinking water standards. The cold and the elevation keep the feces from degrading in a timely fashion and so it ends up getting barreled up and deposited in the lakebed. One potential answer was devised by Gary Porter, a retired engineer and climbing enthusiast, who is working to make bio-gas digesters that will convert the feces into methane gas. But because the digesters are difficult to operate at high altitudes, even this solution comes with its own puzzle.

Colorful tents and Tibetan prayer flags at Everest Base Camp, Khumbu Region, Nepal. R.M. NUNES

This isnt new, as climbers that scale Mt. Rainier in Washington State and El Capitan in Yosemite are required to defecate into bags, which they then remove after their descent.

KEUCHEL SHOULD BE OPTION FOR YANKS AFTER SEVY INJURY

OPINION

JOE PANTORNO
@JoePantorno

Dallas Keuchel remains one of the top free agents still available. GETTY IMAGES

The New York Yankees' starting rotation depth is already being questioned with just three weeks until Opening Day.

Staff ace Luis Severino was shut down for at least two weeks on Tuesday due to rotator cuff inflammation. The 25-year-old began complaining of discomfort prior to his spring training start against the Atlanta Braves before being evaluated. He is not expected to be available for Opening Day, at least according to manager Aaron Boone. Severino, however, believes he will be back after those two weeks.

It further continues the frustration surrounding the right-hander, who was surely looking at 2019 as an opportunity to bounce back from a miserable second half of last season. After starting 2018 with a 13-2 record and a minuscule 1.98 ERA, Severino imploded down the stretch, going 6-6 with a 5.67 ERA.

While there is no true timetable for his return as of yet, his unavailability provides some nervy moments for the Yankees. The starting rotation was the Achilles' heel of a 100-win team last year and management made a minimal splash to try and improve it toward a top-tier standing.

General manager Brian Cashman pulled off a trade for Seattle Mariners ace James Paxton, but there are some understandable concerns surrounding the southpaw's game. The 30-year-old has never pitched more than 160.1 innings in a season, has had issues with wild pitches — which could be magnified with Gary Sanchez behind the plate — and has an alarming fly-ball rate while preparing to start a majority of his games in the hitter-friendly Yankee Stadium.

Paxton was expected to be the No. 2 behind Severino, where he'd team up with Masahiro Tanaka, who battled inconsistencies of his own; the re-signed JA Happ; and the veteran CC Sabathia, who will be embarking on his farewell tour this season.

It's not the most imposing rotation, especially when the Boston Red Sox will be rolling out Chris Sale, Davis Price and Nathan Eovaldi as a top three.

But new concerns about Severino's health might have prompted the Yankees to delve back into the market for some much-needed rotational insurance.

However, Brian Cashman noted on Wednesday that he will attempt to address the issue in-house.

"What I've got is what I've got," he stated.

What he has are options like Domingo German, Luis Cessa, Jonathan Loaisiga, and Chance Adams — arms that don't necessarily provide a legitimate replacement for an arm like Severino's.

The notion makes left-handed free agent Dallas Keuchel an attractive name, one which rose to prominence over the past four years with the Houston Astros.

There's no denying that the 31-year-old has been inconsistent during that stretch. He won the American League Cy Young Award in 2015 by going 20-8 with a 2.48 ERA, only to follow it up with a 9-12 campaign in which he sported a 4.55 ERA. Granted, it was revealed after that 2016 season that he pitched most of the season with shoulder pain. He got back on track two years ago with a 14-5 mark and 2.90 ERA but regressed once again in 2018 when he went 12-11 with a 3.74 ERA.

With the potential of ace-like stuff, the market surrounding Keuchel has been difficult. Most potential suitors aren't looking to give Keuchel a top-tier contract after the season he just had, especially when the southpaw is looking for a five-year contract.

There is an opportunity for the Yankees to snag the veteran on a budget as we get to crunch time before the start of the regular season. Keuchel has proven that he can perform in the Bronx, sporting a 2.45 regular-season ERA over five career starts with 35 strikeouts in 33 innings of work.

Signing Keuchel would give the Yankees another top-of-the-rotation option to work with, especially if Severino does miss an extended amount of time. Should the ace return quickly, however, Keuchel's presence would allow the Yankees to flex Sabathia to the bullpen. It's a move that would give New York's staff that much more legitimacy and would make them nearly unbeatable if Keuchel can regain his best stuff in 2019.

Isles facing time without top goalie

JOE PANTORNO

A big reason as to why the New York Islanders are in first place in the Metropolitan Division is because of the goaltending they've received from Robin Lehner and Thomas Greiss, who have been the poster boys for the franchise that has exceeded expectations all season.

But a downturn in play that has seen the Islanders lose three of their last five games has suggested that not everything is right for Barry Trotz and Co. Now it looks like the team has suffered another blow as half of its goaltending tandem could be out for a while.

Lehner was forced to leave Tuesday night's game against the Ottawa Senators late in the third period when he was bowled over by Brady Tkachuk on what became the game-tying goal. Greiss was called on in relief and helped the Islanders squeak by the NHL's worst team in a shootout.

While the 27-year-old netminder was evaluated for a concussion, the Islanders have yet to provide an update on his availability for the time being. However, they recalled goalie Christopher Gibson from Bridgeport (AHL) which could be a clear sign that Lehner likely won't be available on Thursday night in the second leg of the team's home-and-home with the Senators.

The injury looks to be bringing Lehner's comeback season to a screeching halt. After being given a chance by the Islanders after a harrowing offseason that included a battle with depression and addiction, Lehner had blossomed into one of the best goalies in the NHL. In 38 games this season, he was 20-11-5 with a .928 save percentage and a league-leading 2.16 goals-against average.

Over his past four games, though, Lehner has looked beatable with a .899 save percentage while going 1-2-0. It included a weak effort against the Philadelphia Flyers on Sunday, where he allowed three goals on just 13 shots before he was pulled. It was one of three times he conceded three or more goals during that four-game stretch. He allowed three or more goals just five times since Dec. 18.

Gibson, 26, has appeared in 13 games with the Islanders over the last three seasons, sporting a .901 save percentage and 3.56 goals-against average. Splitting time with Jeremy Smith down in Bridgeport this season, he is 18-9-1 with a 2.89 goals-against average and .900 save percentage.

He will obviously take a backseat to Greiss, who is experiencing a resurgence of his own in 2019. The 33-year-old has raised his save percentage by 35 points this season — which is now at a .927 clip — while bettering his goals-against average by 1.5 goals down to 2.26.

The Islanders' immediate schedule is favorable enough to start Greiss every night should Lehner be out for multiple games. Following tonight's game in Ottawa, the Islanders are back at the Nassau Coliseum on Saturday for a rematch with the Flyers before hosting the Columbus Blue Jackets on Monday and the Montreal Canadiens on March 14.
